Clients Council report on performance and the Summer Street Bill of Rights

In 2009 Summer Street encouraged the establishment of a client group to represent all clients and offer insight from their perspective on how the organization is doing. The first order of business was the development of a Bill of Rights.

Many meetings and lots of discussion later the Client Council presented their Bill of Rights to management, staff and Board. Since that time we have strategically worked toward enhancing our person-centered culture through 79 points identified by the clients. In January 2015 the Client Council reported to Board and management that of the 11 key areas containing 79 points, improvements have been made in all key areas.

- 41 received a green rating (organization culture positively changed)
- 29 received a yellow rating (improvements made but work still required)
- 1 received a red (no improvement). This rating was given to "This means I want to earn a fair wage*."

We continue to work closely with the Client Council to achieve improvement and positive change in all areas.

* In partnership with Directions Council and the Nova Scotia Department of Community Services, government is being asked to provide funding for client stipend pay throughout the province.

Providing valuable input to our sector and community

- MINISTER'S ADVISORY PANEL ON ACCESSIBILITY LEGISLATION: Summer Street provided input and recommendations on how new legislation could positively influence accessibility to employment by people with disability.
- ONE NOVA SCOTIA: We provided a presentation on workforce participation and how Summer Street's person-centered culture positively influences our employer partnership network and social enterprises.

Randy Crawford, Pictou Sobeys

Summer Street Works prepared Randy Crawford for the challenging and fast paced environment of the Sobeys Deli department.

Under the direction of his very supportive manager, Justine Jollimore, and the rest of the deli staff, Randy has become one of the team. He thrives working with customers both in the hot and cold food sections. His constant smile and positive attitude are a joy to see upon entering the store.

"Randy has come really far since he has been with us. He is always working and tries to learn one new thing every day. He notices and does things here that no one else does and it amazes me. He is a big part of the team." Justine Jollimore, Manager Sobeys Deli

"I wanted to make sure the happiness I witnessed, continues into the future"

Bill O'Farrell is at a place in life where he's started to think about his legacy. He visited Summer Street on a number of occasions and had always admired what was going on there. "This seemed like a good time to get involved in gift planning," he explains. "I went to see Bob and he took me on a tour. I had no idea how much was really happening behind the scenes there. The way the people were working together, they were all so enthusiastic. There was a great sense of wellbeing and seemed to be a lot of happiness. I was inspired to give."

Now retired, Bill spent 55 years in the automobile industry, most of that time as owner of the GM franchise in Pictou County. His generous gift of shares to the Summer Street Foundation realized a significant gain when they were transferred - making an even greater impact than could have been imagined when the gift was made.
